

Praise for the Clinicians' and Educators' Desk Reference

"I urge my class of fourth-year medical students and residents to refer to the CEDR often in the future. It really is a wonderful, IPE/C-themed guide." – Shelley R. Adler, PhD, Professor, Department of Family and Community Medicine; Director of Education, Osher Center for Integrative Medicine

"Congratulations on an excellent, helpful and much needed regulatory road map." – Richard "Buz" Cooper, MD, Professor of Medicine and Senior Fellow, Leonard Davis Institute of Health Economics, University of Pennsylvania

"Offers all of us, for the first time, a clear view of the CAM professions: their skills, approaches to patient care, education and accreditation.... extremely useful for current health practitioners who need to know more about each of the CAM disciplines, and for consumers who are evaluating their health-care choices." – Elaine Zablocki, Townsend Letter, November 2010

"This handbook is an excellent resource for all nurses....The book also includes a very informative chapter on Collaboration between the Disciplines." –American Holistic Nurses Association, News From AHNA, Vol. 9 No. 3

"The Clinicians' and Educators' Desk Reference certainly fills a hole in health education textbook resources....healthcare students of all disciplines need this concise and current summary of this evolving and exciting sector of the healthcare system. It is well-organized, up-to-date and will certainly be used to foster greater interprofessional understanding and inter-disciplinary behavior among healthcare practitioners." – William Meeker, DC, MPH, President, Palmer College-West Campus

"This reference text is meant to support students, practitioners, patients and academic and policy leaders in creating appropriate and respectful collaboration between the disciplines to provide optimal healthcare." – Cherie Sohnen-Moe, March 2010 Teacher's Aide

"This is a reference book every student interested in CAM should have on their shelf." – Adam Perlman, MD, MPH, Past-Chair, CAHCIM; Associate VP, Duke Health & Wellness; Executive Director, Duke Integrative Medicine

"This reference can be helpful when responding to patient questions regarding other disciplines, as well as when referring patients to those same disciplines. Having additional information about those disciplines might help us to better select which one is a better fit for referral for our patients." – Marcia Prenguber, ND, Director of Integrative Care, Indiana University Health Goshen Center for Cancer Care

"In short, the CEDR covers the topics that we need and is the perfect text for our Survey of Health Professions course." – Ed Shaheen, MD, Chairman of Western Medicine Dept, Yo San University of TCM

"Even though I consider myself quite well-informed about this topic, I was impressed with how much I learned from this desk reference. Most of the books about CAM discuss primarily the modalities and not much about the practitioners....Ultimately, therefore, it will give us greater understanding of the CAM professionals which will then support the goal of all practitioners – better health care for our patients." – Bill Manahan, MD, Assistant Professor Emeritus, Department of Family Medicine and Community Health, University of Minnesota Academic Health Center

“Congratulations on producing a very useful and much needed reference. Dr. Amri and I decided that all graduates of our Program at Georgetown University in Complementary and Alternative Medicine should receive a copy.” – Aviad Haramati, PhD, Professor in the Departments of Physiology & Biophysics and Medicine, Georgetown University School of Medicine; Founding Vice Chair, CAHCIM

“This well-referenced book will appeal to those clinicians with a scientific- and evidence-based mindset, and yet is written in simple enough language so that no therapist, or client, would be intimidated by it.... I think it’s important to get this book into the hands of as many mainstream-medicine practitioners as possible.” – Laura Allen, In Massage Today, February 2010

“Consolidates hard to find information on specific issues for each of the disciplines in one go-to place.” – Ruth Levy, MBA, CP AOBTA, Director of Admissions, Pacific College of Oriental Medicine

“The desk reference is intended for clinicians interested in collaboration and referral and will also serve as a textbook and useful resource for educators and students.” – Midwifery Education Accreditation Council, MANA NEWS, November 2009

“We are giving these books to our full time and pro-rata faculty at our Faculty Development Day. Faculty need to have access to this text before they can envision how they might use it. Once faculty have had a chance to review the book, it is likely they will find innovative ways to incorporate it in their courses and share it with other providers.” – Renée M. DeVries, DC, DACBR, Dean, College of Chiropractic, Northwestern Health Sciences University

“A guide to the five licensed CAM professions, written by vetted experts, that can be used as a desk reference for clinicians and a textbook and resource for educators and students.” – Integrative Practitioner Newsletter, March 2010

“This essential desk reference correctly states that it is time for traditional health care to become more integrated with complementary therapies, and that one of the primary blocks to that has been the lack of knowledge of traditional providers about the licensed professions that provide alternative care.” – Michael H. Cohen, Esq., Former Assistant Professor of Medicine, Harvard Medical School; Publisher, CAM Law Blog

“The CEDR and companion power point presentation are fantastic resources - my thanks to ACCAHC for producing them; I refer my conventional colleagues to the CEDR quite regularly.” – Erica Oberg, ND, MPH, Director of Clinical Services at Bastyr University Clinic in San Diego, Director of the Bastyr University Center for Health Policy and Leadership

“This is a useful text that will be employed frequently in the day-to-day care of patients, and will certainly remain a valued reference for each of our students long after graduation.” – Joseph E. Brimhall, DC, President, University of Western States

“A concise, well-articulated and reliable reference that serves as a landmark step in fostering collaboration and understanding between healthcare professions.... This excellent desk reference will be valuable for healthcare professionals, institutions, schools, educators, students, libraries and patients. ” – Lori Howell, LAc, DAOM, Former Director of Clinical Services, Pacific College of Oriental Medicine; Former Assistant Academic Dean, Pacific College of Oriental Medicine
